Our Happy Play Day

One sunny day, I said to you,
"Come and play with me!"

"Where will we go?" you asked.
"Down to the big blue tree!"

We ran and ran, away we went,
Under the bright, blue sky.
"What do you see?" you said to me.
"A little red bird, flying high!"

"Look, look! It came down here!"
"Where? I do not see."
"It is on that pretty yellow flower,
Looking right at you and me!"

"Can we play with it?" you asked.
"No, it will fly away.
But we can run and jump and play
All through the happy day!"

So we ran and played and had good fun,
Under the sun so bright.
We ate our snack under the tree,
And laughed with all our might.

Soon we saw a little brown rabbit,
It ran into its home.

"I want to see where it went!" you said.
"Into that hole it has gone."

We sat and watched, so quiet and still,
We did not make a sound.
Then out it came, so soft and sweet,
Hopping on the ground.

"Look at its little white tail!"
"Yes, and its fur is brown!"
"We must be kind and very still,
So it will not run to town."

Soon the sun went down so low,
The sky turned pink and blue.
"It is time to go home now," I said.
"Yes, I am coming too."

We ran up the hill, we saw our home,
The light was on, so warm and bright.
"What a pretty, happy, fun play day!"
"We will play again, all right!"

"My feet are tired," you said to me.
"Mine are too," I said.
"But we will go out again soon,
Under the blue sky overhead."

"I love to play with you," I said.
"I love it too," said you.
"We are good friends, you and I,
Yes, that is surely true."
